TRANSFORMING LIVES

Rock to Recovery helps people heal and transform their lives through the powerful experience of writing, playing, and performing music as a group.

“Rock to Recovery lets me get out emotions I’ve struggled with my whole life.”

- Group Participant

GROWTH & IMPACT

Rock to Recovery is a registered 501c3. It was launched 12/12/12 in Orange County, California.

We have written over 23,000 songs.

We now provide programming to approximately 3,000 people each month at 100+ facilities through more than 500+ group sessions.

Sixteen program administrators serve California, Oregon, and Tennessee.

Our program partners include the United States Department of Defense, Air Force, Navy Wounded Warriors, and Claire Foundation, Spinal Cord Injury VA, New Directions for Women, to name a few.

Our programs are recognized as “platinum” by GuideStar and “top-rated” by Great Nonprofits for transparency of reporting and quality of services.

HOW WE DO IT:

We hire professional musicians in recovery from addiction and associated mental health issues to lead sessions. This allows us to provide musicianship, compassion and empathy from people who have overcome similar problems to those we serve.

WHO IT HELPS:

Our program improves the lives and treatment outcomes for veterans, mental health and addiction patients, at-risk youth, and those with other challenges. We have proven success with individuals with trauma, traumatic brain injury, physical limitations, and psychiatric problems.

“I truly believe Rock to Recovery helps save lives.” - Air Force Veteran

FOUNDER STORY + BIO

Wesley Geer has been a professional musician for over 25 years. He first gained success as the founding member of Jive Records artists Hed P.E. and later as touring guitarist with the legendary band Korn. When the Korn gig was coming to an end, Wes was moved to find a way to proliferate the use of playing music as a treatment modality. He founded Rock To Recovery, an innovative music program that harnesses the healing energy of music through songwriting, playing as a band, and recording.

“When I was in treatment for addiction, I realized how much music could help [me] get through those tough emotions that run so rampant, especially in the early days of recovery. Being totally sober and dealing with the bottom I had hit – strumming the guitar was the only thing that would bring me peace. I saw how that connection to music helped others in treatment with me, even people who had never played guitar. That’s where the idea for Rock to Recovery was born.”

TESTIMONIALS

I've been sober 10 days and today attended Wes's music group and it was by far the best group I've been to. I came in thinking I wouldn't enjoy it and it completely changed my day, I stopped tripping on stupid shit, I was detoxing hard and didn't feel any detox during and after. It was unreal, thanks to Wes and all my homies that jammed with me.

MEMORANDUM FOR To Whom It May Concern

FROM: Air Force Wounded Warrior Program

SUBJECT: Letter of Recommendation

Rock to Recovery is an integral part of the Air Force Wounded Warrior Wellness and Resiliency program. Our program fully recommends their services for individuals with trauma, substance abuse, physical disabilities, and various forms of mental health concerns.

We host several CARE Events every year throughout the country and the Rock to Recovery program is one of our most popular classes, consistently being evaluated by participants as useful in their recovery and building resiliency.

The program's efficacy seems to come in part from the way the group interacts together, forming a community around common experiences. In the songwriting process, group members share their difficulties, finding both a source of creative expression and support for common problems, including suicidal ideation. Time and again, as songs are written, we see real change take place through emotional expression, validation of experience, and group encouragement in the process.

One of the most important things we have noticed, is that those who participate in the Rock to Recovery program very often seek help for suicidal thoughts instead of acting on them.

Rock to Recovery is an invaluable program that consistently provides an important service to our participants and their caregivers. I enthusiastically endorse them.

PROGRAM SPONSORSHIP

SPONSORSHIP

PROGRAM SPONSORSHIP enables Rock to Recovery to deliver our transformative programs with our amazing nonprofit partners. Your support helps us continue to offer the healing power of music to new organizations that could not otherwise afford a music program. We work with a wide array of organizations. Though their missions vary, they share a similar focus of improving people's lives. We take the healing power of music to pregnant women getting off of IV drugs; youth; veterans overcoming trauma, amputation, traumatic brain injury and other service related injuries; individuals transitioning out of prison/jail; LGBTQ+ agencies focused on personal empowerment and acceptance; and many more.

Please let us know what populations you'd like your dollars to sponsor, leveraging the power of making music.

Program costs range from $8,000-$8,500 to provide weekly services for a year.
The cost per person is approximately $12/session.

Rock to Recovery is a registered 501(c)(3) non-profit organization - your donation may qualify as a charitable deduction for federal income tax purposes. Please consult your tax advisor.
